

Redevelopment Plan:

A site visit to Amory has highlighted the numerous departments that are based here; Geography, Law, Politics, History, Theology, Ancient History and Classics. These are some of the university's leading subjects, unless updated, the building could become outdated and fail to providing up-to-date facilities therefore affecting its competitive advantages. This project is within the universities 2016-2021 architecture budget of £200 million and a justified venture with the forum costing only a quarter of this. The new Amory development will attempt to relieve the Forum's overcapacity pressures by creating a similar work environment which is preferred by students. A space where users could spend the whole

The transformation will address the spaces shown in the following aerial view images;

The transformation will be divided into 4 segments

Sketches of the new refurbished building are shown in Appendix 8

Appendix 8

POND tree

